

City of Niles Website in Hiatus

The City of Niles is currently transforming our website into a new content management website. During this process, regular updates to some areas of the website may go unattended until the new site comes online near the end of July. However, our website will remain functional and active.

We are hopeful that the new content management website will allow us to provide you even more updated information regarding Niles City operations, activities and events.

Please Note:

City Calendar

The City of Niles Website Calendar will be updated and remain current.
